MIKADO TO CLAIM U.S. CITIZENS

That the Hawaiian-born Japanese, who obtained registration certificates from the office of the Secretary of the Territory of Hawaii, as identifications of their American citizenship, are, in the opinion of the Japanese government, subjects of the Mikado, and that in the event of their return to Dai Nippon, they are obliged to undergo military service of three years, is the opinion of Hon. Tokichi Tanaka, special agent of the Imperial Japanese government, who is investigating the general condition of the Japanese in Hawaii.

Hon. Tokichi Tanaka, returned this morning from Maui, accompanied by Secretary Kono of the Japanese Consulate-General. In speaking of the registration of the Hawaiian-born Japanese in the Territory, Mr. Tanaka told the Star-Bulletin reporter, that the Japanese government recognizes the Hawaiian-born Japanese as its subjects, and, as such they must serve in the military service for three years, according to the Japanese laws.

He said, however, that this particular law only apply to those who have attained their majority, say, of twenty years.

Causes Complications.

The explanation made by Mr. Tanaka makes a serious complication in the matter of obtaining the registration certificates by the Hawaiian-born Japanese. This question will doubtless be brought to the attention of the

KAU DITCH BILL SIGNED BY TAFT; WORK TO BEGIN

McCroscon Receives News and Immediately Gets Busy on Plans

"Kau bill approved by the President." This is a cablegram received by John T. McCroscon through Thompson, Wilder, Watson & Lymer's office this morning.

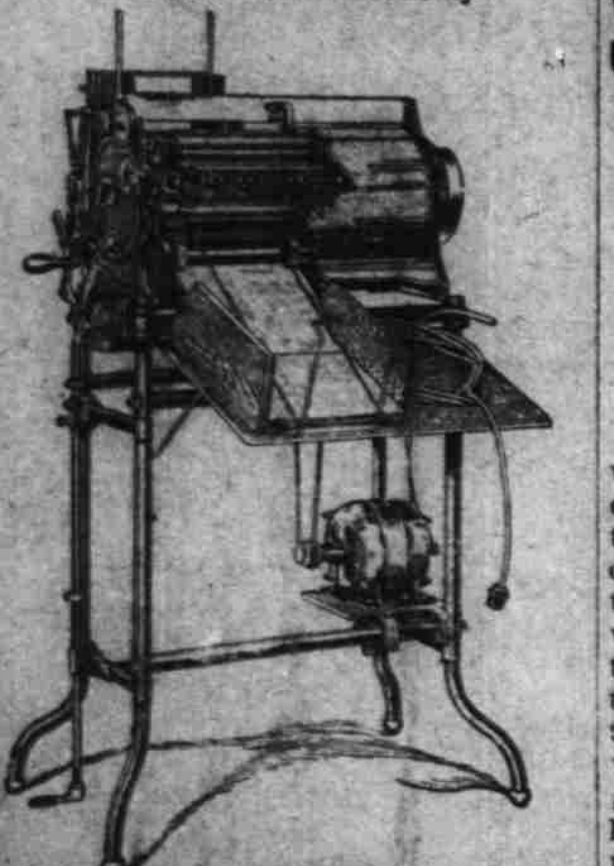

Mr. McCroscon, who has just returned from the Island of Hawaii, having shown the cablegram to a Star-Bulletin reporter, was asked if things would now begin moving toward the construction of the Kau ditch, and in reply he said:

"Yes; I cabled immediately to people in San Francisco to go ahead at once with the financing. I hope within a month to have a lot of men at work on the ditch."

"The company will be organized here right away. Its capitalization, as before stated, will be $3,500,000. I expect that the ditch will take two years to build. It will be one hundred miles in length, including thirty miles of tunnel."

"The Kohala and Hamakua ditches, notwithstanding the very dry weather, are running up to their full contract quantities, and some plantations are taking extra water on account of the dry weather."

DR. C. W. ELIOT IMPRESSED BY PEARL HARBOR

Peace Advocate Displays Deep Interest in Warlike Plans.

SHOWS KNOWLEDGE OF WORK IN PROGRESS

Asks Pertinent Questions and Makes Clever Suggestions as to Plans

Pondering over the silent sermon on the efficacy of warlike preparations as a guarantee of peace, preached by Pearl Harbor and its defenses, President Eliot, envoy of international amity, this morning viewed the great naval stronghold of the mid-Pacific. Escorted by two naval officers of flag rank, and half a dozen civilians who have the technical problems of the island's defense at their finger tips, the Harvard savant viewed Pearl Harbor from the deck of the navy tug Navajo, landed to inspect the big drydock in course of construction, and obtained a rapid-fire insight into existing conditions, and the probable future influence of America's key to the Western seas.

President Eliot was impressed. Reserved, and not in the habit of spreading broadcast his conclusions until he has had the opportunity of weighing them on the scales of logic and scholarship, he did not speak fully of the impressions which Pearl Harbor photographed on his mind, but from a remark here and a comment there, it was easy to gather that the trustees of the Carnegie Peace Foundation did not hold the belief that the disarmament of the nations should commence with Oahu's naval base.

LINK SAYS HE'LL KEEP OUT OF THIS FIGHT

"Going to keep out of it," was the unusually laconic answer of L. L. McCandless, Democratic boss, this morning when asked what he is going to do about the ultimatum put up to him by the "Democratic League" the other night.

The "Democratic League," made up of ex-police-men and disaffected men who used to hold office, says that McCandless must declare himself either for or against Jarrett. McCandless and Jarrett factions have been looking askance at each other for nearly two years, and now the league wants a statement from McCandless.

"I am not going to take any part in this fight," said McCandless this morning when asked as to what his attitude will be. "The fight had nothing to do with my candidacy for delegate. I will not be drawn into it."

"Are you going to pay any attention to the league's ultimatum?" he was asked.

"I won't say that I won't pay any attention to it," he replied, "but I am not going to be drawn into the fight. I'm going to keep this controversy out of my campaign."

The Democrats say this can't be done.

SAY GORDON AND TANAKA ON LIKE MISSIONS

That the Hon. Tokichi Tanaka's visit to Hawaii and the trip to Japan of Peyton Gordon, special agent of the department of justice, are both connected with the same matter, and that this is Japanese immigration, was the report afloat yesterday and today. The special agent, as told in the Star-Bulletin yesterday, is coming to Honolulu on his way to Japan and while in Honolulu will conduct the grand jury investigation. Japanese labor is one of the matters that it is reported will be taken up. Mr. Tanaka's mission is admittedly one of investigation here.

COWBOYS KISS HANDS OF QUEEN AS SHE IS WED

Miss Thelma Parker and Mr. Henry Smart United in Marriage Amid Scenes of Magnificence — Waimea Village on Fete. Ceremony Is Dignified and Surroundings Picturesque.

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence) and Miss Charlotte Dowsett, cousin on WAIMEA, July 26.—Under a magnificent floral canopy and before an altar whose rich simplicity was in keeping with the solemnity and dignity of the occasion, Miss Thelma Parker and Robert Henry Gillard Smart were married last night at one of the most notable functions in the history of the islands.

Picturesque in lavishness of care and taste, the wedding arrangements were remarkable for beauty of ensemble and detail, and the pretty romance between the Hawaiian heiress and the young Virginian, begun but a few months ago on board a trans-Pacific liner, was strikingly emphasized in the ceremony that made the two young people man and wife.

Room a Great Bow.

Miss Parker's beautiful living-room, thirty-eight by forty-five feet, was decorated in eucalyptus boughs, typical of the foliage of the ranch village. Every door and window of this room was outlined with eucalyptus, and from the room every piece of furniture had been removed with the exception of the piano. Down the center of the great room, leading from the room where the bride party was assembling, ran a carpeted aisle, carried the length of the room to the altar. The altar had been arranged for the ceremony with splendid taste. The background of the altar was decorated in smilax, maiden hair, white asters and tulle. The altar itself was covered with cloth of silver with a rich piece of Byzantine lace, an heirloom of the bride's uncle, Ernest Parker. A handsome candelabra of Sheffield silver, and other candlesticks of cut glass, lent a touch of olden time simplicity and antique state to the effect.

Family and Friends Gather.

A little below the ceiling, reaching from the background of the altar to where the ceremony was performed, was a beautiful canopy of trailing smilax and white tulle. On each side of the whole aisle were low pillars of eucalyptus, white asters and tulle, each pillar being connected by white ribbons.

On the left side of this aisle stood the members of Miss Parker's mother's family, and her former guardian and present trustee of the estate, Mr. Alfred Carter, and his family, and Mr. Ollie Sorenson, acting manager of the Parker ranch, with Mr. Sorenson and Mr. Richard Trent, who represented the groom's family. On the right-hand side of the aisle stood the bride's grandfather, Col. Sam Parker, with his five children, uncles and aunts of the bride. Next to them, in line came the rest of the members of the bride's father's family, while intimate friends stood immediately back of the family representing both sides of the house.

It was Miss Parker's wish that her cowboys and their families should see her marriage, and the room and doors and windows afforded them a view of the ceremony.

A few minutes after 8 o'clock, the two bridesmaids entered, Miss Aileen Maguire, cousin on her father's side,

Korean Calls On Courts To Smooth Course of True Love

Would Wed Chinese Girl Held Prisoner by Indignant Parents

Because she attempted to elope with young Kim Paw, a Korean, eighteen-year-old See Mey Soong is imprisoned in the fastnesses of her mother's bed-chamber over which Mrs. Ah Soong is mounting guard. Ah Soong, the father, is in jail charged with assault with a deadly weapon, the would-be bridegroom is triumphant in the possession of a writ of habeas corpus signed by Judge Whitney which orders that the girl be brought before Judge Cooper of the Circuit Court.

Kim Paw is a Korean, while See Mey Soong is a Chinese and partly for this reason, and partly because See Mey Soong, it is said, has already been sold to a wealthy old Chinese for a bride, her parents frowned upon the projected union between their daughter and the Korean. He was forbidden the premises at Kahului and See Mey Soong was ordered to keep a close prisoner.

Nothing daunted, the couple arranged an elopement and late Wednesday night Kim Paw presented himself at the rear of Ah Soong's premises and whistled for his fiancée. Ah Soong, armed with a shotgun, responded to the whistle and he is alleged to have sent a charge of shot after the fleeing suitor.

See Mey Soong was promptly imprisoned in her mother's bed-chamber, the door may fast with a pile of soy tubs with Mrs. Ah Soong perched on top of the improvised rampart as sentinel. At intervals Ah Soong would relieve his wife from guard duty, and ever since the night of the thwarted elopement, See Mey Soong has been kept a close prisoner.

This morning Kim Paw appeared before Judge Whitney armed with an application for a writ of habeas corpus, declaring that the girl was over eighteen; was being kept a prisoner against her will, and had been sold to a wealthy Chinese. Judge Whitney signed the writ and issued a summons ordering that the girl be brought before Judge Cooper next Tuesday morning.

Kim Paw then hurried over to the police station and swore out a warrant for Ah Soong's arrest, charging assault with a deadly weapon. Ah Soong will appear before Judge Monarrat on Monday morning.

SHINGLE MAN TO RUN, THINK MANY LEADERS

Sentiment Crystallizing in Favor of Man to Make Race for Delegateship

BUSINESSMEN SHOW MUCH PUBLIC SPIRIT

Local Offices Found Comparatively Easy to Fill, Say Those in Charge

Robert W. Shingle, though refusing to become a candidate for delegate against Prince Kuhio, is regarded as the man to carry the Republican nomination in the campaign this fall.

Many Republican leaders in the past few days seem to have been coming to the conclusion that Shingle can consistently be asked to run, and that there is some possibility that he will accept. It is reported that Kuhio may even withdraw if Shingle's name is certain of going before the Republican convention.

Street talk today among several well-known Republicans was to the effect that a sentiment is crystallizing on Shingle and that a strong effort will be made to induce him to become at least a receptive candidate. It is understood that he will stick by his published statement not to come out against Kuhio, but many party leaders feel that he will not refuse an endorsement.

The names of J. M. Dowsett, C. A. Rice and D. P. R. Isenberg have been suggested for possible candidates, but the latest information is that neither Mr. Dowsett nor Mr. Rice will consent to run, and that Isenberg's plans for an extended stay on the mainland make his candidacy out of the question.

The businessmen's committee held a meeting this morning, but only a general discussion of the situation was indulged in and nothing definite was done.

Chairman J. M. Dowsett stated this morning that there will be no trouble in getting men of ability and high standing to take active part in the fall campaign for local office. He says it looks as if the question of securing good candidates for the local positions will be comparatively easy, and the whole committee feels encouraged at the public spirit shown among able and successful businessmen.

MAJOR WOOTEN NAMED ON ARMY STRATEGY BOARD

The great importance of the work of forming plans for an "Impregnable Oahu" which lies before the board of army officers ordered to convene here July 31, has been further emphasized by a special order of the War Department, just received here, which names Major William P. Wooten as an added member of the board.

Major Wooten, as district engineer officer; officer in charge of rivers and harbors in the islands under the Treasury Department; constructing quartermaster of Waikiki; officer in charge of aids to navigation of the 15th lighthouse district; assistant to the chief engineer officer of the Western Division; and a few other titles is naturally an important personage when it comes to knowledge of fortifications and defensive possibilities, and his appointment as a member of the board is looked on at department headquarters as a valuable move.

Whether Lieutenant Colonel Morrison, who, when last heard of was ment that is now marching through the North Central states to test various equipment, will be here on time it is not yet known. It is probable that Major Blakely, the fourth member of the board, will arrive on the Lurline on July 31.

The military careers of Charles Peterson, aged 8, and Willie Silva, aged 10, came to a sudden end this morning when Charles' brother Nicholas came upon the two youthful warriors as they were storming the ramparts of a Chinese cigar store on Smith street, this noon.

Charles and Willie determined to be soldiers early this morning, so Chas. appropriated seventeen dollars belonging to his mother and purchased two 22-caliber rifles and several boxes of ammunition.

LODGE SCORES CANE SUGAR MEN

Says Attempting to Crush Beet Interests-Committee of Whole Take Action

(Special Cable to Star-Bulletin) WASHINGTON, D. C., July 27.—The sugar bill as finally adopted by the Senate today is the Lodge bill with an amendment by Bristow added.

The Bristow amendment fixes 2 1/2-10 cents instead of 3 1/2 cents duty for each degree above 75 degrees and abolishes the Dutch standard and the differential.

(Associated Press Cable) WASHINGTON, D. C., July 27.—The Senate, in committee of the whole, today adopted a compromise Bristow-Lodge sugar bill as a substitute for the House free-sugar measure.

The Senate bill as passed in committee of the whole today fixes the tariff on refined sugar at $1.80 a hundred. The vote was 37 to 25. The bill offered as an amendment by Senator Williams, Democrat, was defeated by 35 to 24. Senator Lodge denounced American cane sugar interests, which, he charged, are attempting to crush the beet sugar people by advocating free raw sugar.

A cablegram received this morning by the Henry Waterhouse Trust Company from Politz & Co., of San Francisco stated that at that time the final vote was not taken, and that the regular and progressive in the Senate had agreed to a tariff of $1.60 a hundred. The present duty is $1.685, or practically $1.70 a hundred.

LODGE-BRISTOW BILL FINALLY PASSES SENATE

(Special Cable to Star-Bulletin) WASHINGTON, D. C., July 27.—The Lodge-Bristow bill finally passed the Senate on report of committee of the whole by a vote of 52 to 3.

Mikado Is Barely Alive

(Special Cable to Star-Bulletin) TOKIO, Japan, July 27.—The Emperor is barely breathing and his death is expected at any moment. As a last recourse, the physicians in attendance are using a saline solution as an injection in an effort to prolong the life of the ruler by artificial means.

Neither the Japanese newspapers in Honolulu nor the Japanese consulate received any word this morning from the bedside of the stricken Emperor. Cable messages received late last night stated that there was no hope of saving his life and that the nation was preparing for the period of mourning to follow.

"Bumble Bee House" Legend Destroyed By Realty Sale

Inspection of Old Spreckels Mansion Destroys Cherished Traditions

With the purchase by Harry F. Lewis of the old Spreckels mansion, the ruthless hand of commercialism has again been stretched forth to destroy an old and cherished tradition regarding the "Bumble Bee House."

Ever since the day Claus Spreckels shook the dust of Honolulu from his feet and departed for the main and vowing never more to return, legend has clung lovingly around his mansion.

Tradition has had it, that the house had been permitted to remain just as Spreckels had left it, with the breakfast dishes unwashed on the table, and that of late years a countless brood of bumble bees had used the house as a hive and practically destroyed it.

Follows the aforesaid ruthless hand, shattering tradition, Mr. Lewis inspected his property yesterday and as a result learned that his purchase had brought him more than he had expected.

The house was found to be in perfect condition and full of rare treasures gathered from all parts of the world.

As Mr. Lewis acquired the contents with house, he has been put in possession of rooms filled with costly furniture all in an excellent state of preservation, together with quantities of valuable silverware, great stores of fine linen, a cellar of wines of ancient vintage, valuable paintings and other works of art to the value it is said of many thousands dollars.

The only room which gave any indication of the sudden departure of the former owner was his den. Here on a desk reposed a black silk skull cap such as Colonel Spreckels was wont to wear, and beside it a pipe with the ashes still in it.

Mr. Lewis, it is understood will occupy the house as a residence but the halo of tradition which clung to the mansion has departed and some other attraction will have to be found for the tourists on the "rubber-neck" actos.

Next Monday morning, political shots will be fired in the Home Rule headquarters in the Nottley hall, where the leaders and floor managers of the great political organization in the Territory will engage in a political battle.

For news and the truth about it, all people buy the Star-Bulletin.
